

Mike Gulledge Steps in as Montana Meth Project Chairman

November 16, 2006, 5:30 p.m.

By: Carolyn Bunce

Graphic billboards and commercials have turned the "Montana Meth Project" into a huge success. Now the leader behind the multi-million dollar campaign is stepping down. The news stations Carolyn Bunce tells us why and who's taking over. Among many leaders and law enforcement officials in Montana, Tom Siebel commands a lot of respect. After nearly two years in charge, Siebel is handing the reins of the Montana Meth Project to Mike Gulledge, a member of the programs advisory council.